Staying Nimble: Applying Agile & Lean Principles to Supply Presented by: Kumar Dattatreyan, Agile Meridian

When: Monday December 9th 2024

Time: 7:00PM EST or 5:00PM MST

Where: online

Cost: $0 for ASCM NM Forum members

In today's fast-paced business environment, companies must stay nimble and adapt quickly to change. This is especially true in supply chain management, where disruptions can happen at any time.

In this talk, Kumar Dattatreyan explores how agile and lean principles can be applied to make supply chains more flexible, efficient, and responsive. We will start with an overview of agile and lean philosophies, explaining the core values and practices. Agile promotes iterative development, cross-functional collaboration, and an inherent ability to respond to change. Lean focuses on reducing waste, optimizing flow, and delivering value to the customer.

Next, we will discuss the challenges facing traditional supply chains: long lead times, high inventory levels, siloed functions, and lack of visibility. We will explain how these challenges reduce efficiency and prevent companies from responding quickly to disruptions. The key portion of the talk will focus on how agile and lean principles can transform supply chain management. We will provide examples of companies incorporating practices like rapid prototyping, cross-docking, continuous improvement, and integrated supplier networks.

The talk will leave supply chain professionals with concrete ideas they can implement in their own organizations to improve visibility, coordination, and flexibility. Attendees will learn how small changes can have an outsized impact on supply chain performance. Attendees will walk away understanding how to leverage agile and lean to thrive in an uncertain world.

The Association for Supply Chain Management (ASCM) is the global leader in supply chain organizational transformation, innovation and leadership.

About the Presenter:

With over two decades in transformative business leadership, Kumar brings a unique perspective to supply chain optimization, blending hands-on operational experience with strategic technological innovation. His journey began as a restaurateur, where he mastered the art of managing complex, time-sensitive operations and just-in-time inventory – skills that would prove invaluable throughout his career.

Kumar's expertise bridges the gap between traditional supply chain management and modern agile methodologies. He has guided organizations from startups to Fortune 500 companies in revolutionizing their operations, focusing on reducing lead times, optimizing inventory management, and creating more responsive supply networks.

His approach is distinctly practical, recognizing that every supply chain faces unique challenges. Drawing from his experience in highly regulated and non-regulated industries, Kumar helps organizations navigate the delicate balance between efficiency and compliance while building more resilient and adaptive supply chains.

As a certified agile practitioner and ICF-accredited coach (PCC), Kumar specializes in helping leaders transform their operations through the pragmatic application of lean and agile principles. He has trained and coached thousands of professionals, emphasizing the importance of cross-functional collaboration and continuous improvement in supply chain excellence. Kumar's methodology is particularly relevant in today's volatile market, where he helps organizations develop the agility to respond to disruptions while maintaining operational efficiency. His unique operational experience, technological expertise, and coaching skills enable him to guide teams through complex transformations with empathy and pragmatism.

Based in Alexandria, VA, Kumar continues to evolve his approach to organizational transformation, incorporating the latest innovations in technology and management practices while staying grounded in practical, results-driven solutions.
